Canada-U. S. Business

Canada imports a large volume of American goods, for the most part manufactures. That country sells to the United States a large volume of pulp wood, newsprint and similar items of a noncompetitive nature.

GARLAND HOWARD

Garland Howard, aged 17 years, 7 months, and 14 days, died Dec. 19, 1933, from the effects of wounds.

Garland was the son of Edgar Howard, deceased; the grandson of Mr. and Mrs. Harris Howard of White Oak; the nephew of Bernard Howard of White Oak and of Senator Woodford Howard of Prestonsburg.

Garland lived with his mother and stepfather, Mr. and Mrs. Breck Howard, at Royalton, Magoffin county. He has one sister, Virginia.

He had started home with a friend to spend the night and was accidentally shot not far from his home.

Garland was a boy of good character, popular and much loved by his companions. Not only will he be greatly missed by all his relatives, but by a host of friends.

The funeral was held at Royalton Dec. 20 by Rev. J. J. Prater. The next day the remains were brought to the home of his grandparents, where services were held by Rev. Helm of Prestonsburg and Rev. Harlan Murphy of West Liberty. Interment was made in the family cemetery at White Oak.

NEW COUNTY OFFICERS

The new county officers assumed their duties on Monday of this week. W. A. Caskey now presides in the county judge's office after that office had been occupied for eight years by C. P. Henry.

The new members of the fiscal court were sworn in. A meeting of the court was called to convene today. Steps have already been taken to place the county's finances on a business basis.

The new sheriff was also qualified, but he will for the time being be only a peace officer. The retiring sheriff and his deputies will finish their tax collections.

The new jailer goes at things like a veteran, and found business prosperous when he took charge of affairs. It is the intention of the new administration to take the people of the county into their confidence. They will have printed for the information of the public such reports and statements as are required by law to be published.

The Courier would suggest that the delinquent tax list would make interesting reading if published.

REVIVAL MEETING

The Weeks Brothers revival meeting at the courthouse has got off to a fine start, with good attendance and inspiring services.

August S. Weeks, the evangelist, delivers the sermons. His brother, O'Ray Weeks, has charge of the song services.

A junior choir is being organized for the boys and girls, and an adult choir will help the audience swell the tunes.

These services are interdenominational, and everybody is invited to attend.

Birthday Party

Imogene, little daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Nickell, celebrated her fifth birthday on New Year's day. Present were Jauds Arnett, Emogene Murray, Jerry Nell Rose, Frances Ann Stacy, Helen Candill, Miriam Ruth Williams, Thelma Dale Howard, Kenneth Carpenter, John Randolph Rose, Helen Stacy, Martha Carolyn Blair, Virginia Nicolle, and Geraldine Nickell. Of course the little ladies and gentlemen had jolly games, candy, a cake with candles, and hot chocolate.

MCKENZIE-STACY

Bernard Stacy and Andra McKenzie were married on Christmas day and were able to keep the event secret until New Year's eve, when they gave a party at the McKenzie home and formally announced the event. Both the young people are well known and are of prominent families.

BAPTIST CHURCH

Prayer meeting and song service Thursday night at 7 o'clock.

Sunday school every Sunday morning at 9:45.

Everybody is invited to attend these services, "Not forsaking the assembling of ourselves together."

Visitors to a city should go back home singing praises of its hospitality. Treat your visitors well.

Used Fish as Mascots

The fish was looked upon as a symbol of fertility by the ancient Chaldeans who placed fish mascots around the temples to the God of Running Water in the hope that this precaution would bring fertility to their fields.

Work for the Legislature

The Kentucky Tax Reduction association has outlined the following program to insure better local government, and is submitting the program to the general assembly:

1. Revise the present county budget law to provide for the following:

(a) A standard budget form and standard report form furnished the counties by the state, the latter providing for information on income, expenditures, indebtedness, property assessments and tax rates for general purposes and for school purposes.

(b) Submission to the state department of taxation and revenue (division of local government) of the proposed budget, following its provisional adoption by the county budget commission, as now provided by law, for the purpose of review, comments, and corrections as to form twenty days prior to the date fixed for final adoption.

(c) Publication in a local newspaper of general circulation of a proposed county budget, following the meeting of the county budget commission as now provided by law at which the budget is determined; said publication to be made at least ten days before the final adoption of the budget; and to include a notice of a public meeting of the budget commission at which any taxpayer within the jurisdiction will be given an opportunity to attend such meeting for the purpose of discussing the proposed budget and recommending changes in it.

(d) Publication in a local newspaper of general circulation of the budget as adopted, if any changes have been made in it as published in tentative form, as herein provided.

(e) A report of the budget as adopted, made to the state department of taxation and revenue (division of local government) within ten days after its adoption, on a standard form provided by the state for this purpose.

(f) A uniform fiscal year for counties July 1 to June 30, with provision for a definite logical calendar for the steps involved in making and equalizing assessments for taxes; formulating, reviewing, and adopting budgets and making appropriations; and levying and collecting taxes. Provide for the various steps in proper sequence leading to the first due date for payment of taxes at or near the beginning of the fiscal year and final delinquency prior to the end of the fiscal year, with a view to providing, so far as practicable, for operating on a cash basis.

(g) Appropriations shall not exceed the free cash resources as of the beginning of the fiscal year, plus the cash receipts that can reasonably be expected to be received during the year.

(h) Provide for the appointment of a competent bookkeeper or comptroller in the office of the county clerk to keep the accounts of the county and serve as budget officer.

(i) Eliminate the impracticable requirements of the present budget law that cash be allocated to numerous funds, each fund representing a class of expenditure of each activity; avoid tying up cash in funds when it is not immediately needed for the purposes of the funds; and simplify the accounting problems.

(j) Warrants shall be called in the numerical order in which they were issued.

(k) Make adequate provision in the budget for the retirement of the bonded debt and other indebtedness of the county.

2. An appropriation in the general appropriation act of the 1934 general assembly covering the cost of installation of the budget system for counties, the cost of the necessary forms and any other sums needed to make the county budget law operative and effective.

3. Repeal all acts which establish mandatory salaries for all county officials other than those elected by popular vote. A maximum salary may be stated in the law, but the fiscal court shall have the power to pay less.

4. An act providing that the fiscal court in each county shall have the power to fix the rate of pay for tabulators of ballots, and all others employed in counting ballots in all elections.

5. An act requiring that all fees collected by county officials as now provided by law be deposited in the treasury, and the compensation of such officials be established on a salary basis, fixed by the fiscal court.

6. An act providing for the transfer of the duty of making tax collections from the sheriff and the county clerk to the county treasurer; providing for appropriations for the office of county treasurer and for the division of costs of tax collections among the state, county, cities, school districts, and any other units collecting taxes.

7. An act providing for the assessment of taxes on a county unit plan to embrace assessments for cities and towns by the county; the assessor to be appointed from among candidates certified and qualified by the state tax commission.

8. An act abolishing the office of jailer and providing that the duties of this office be assumed by the sheriff.

9. An act abolishing the jury fund and the office of trustee of the jury fund; and providing for the deposit of all fines, forfeitures, judgments, and costs in the state treasury; and for the payment of jurors by the clerks of the circuit courts.

10. An act giving ten or more taxpayers in a county, municipality, school district, or other local taxing district or unit the right to appeal to the state tax commission concerning any item or items in a proposed budget of any of the above named taxing districts having jurisdiction in the matter of levying taxes upon them or their property; said appeal to be prepared and filed on forms provided by the said commission, and a public hearing held on the appeal; the commission having the power to affirm or decrease any item concerning which complaint is made, its decision being final and conclusive.

MOSTLY FARMERS

Frankfort, Ky.—There will be more farmers in the forthcoming session of the Legislature than any other classification. Out of the 138 members of the General Assembly, 100 in the House and 38 in the Senate—there are 38 farmers.

Lawyers come a close second, there being 35 of the legal profession who will be members of the law-making body. Lawyers dominate the Senate, where 13 of the 38 members are lawyers. There are five farmers in the Senate with five others who divide their time between farming and some other occupation. Three merchants, three physicians, two newspapermen, one teacher and five others of various classifications compose the Senate.

In the House of Representatives there are 27 farmers, 22 lawyers, 14 teachers, six merchants, three ministers, two newspaper men two housewives, one banker, one physician, one dentist, one private detective and 20 others covering various classifications.

TOWN BOARD ORGANIZES

The new board of town trustees of West Liberty was sworn in and organized Monday night.

Roscoe Brong was elected chairman of the board, and Dr. A. P. Gullett was elected treasurer and clerk. J. Blaine Nickell was elected to continue as town attorney. Miss Josephine McGuire was employed to prepare duplicate tax books for 1933 town taxes. Steps were taken toward settlement of accounts with town tax collectors for several previous years.

Regular meetings of the town board will be held the first Tuesday night of each month, at the office of Dr. A. P. Gullett. Members of the board are Roscoe Brong (chairman), T. H. Caskey, Homer Elam, L. B. Reed, and L. L. Williams.

STEAM BOILER EXPLODES

Probably the worst accident ever known in Morgan county was the blowing up of Ollie Cox's grist mill on Elk fork Tuesday.

Mr. Cox was only slightly injured, but others near the mill did not so easily escape. Two boys, Arch Dawson and Pierce Adkins, ten or twelve years of age, were killed. The following three men and two boys were badly burned and some had a broken arm or leg: Shiloh Conley, Henry Cantrill, Mart Ison, Hubert Holbrook, Ranny Corlier. They are convalescing under the care of Dr. Webb of West Liberty.

Mr. Cox is not quite sure how it all happened, but it is thought the boiler became too hot causing the explosion. The mill is completely demolished.

Kentucky Farm Radio Program

The college of agriculture will broadcast the following farm radio program from the university of Kentucky extension studios of WHAS the week of Jan. 9. Each program will begin at 12:45, central standard time.

Jan. 9—Tobacco market. Tips from the cowster.

Jan. 10—Tobacco market. Poultry pointers for January, C. E. Harris.

Jan. 11—Tobacco market. Korean lespeche among county agents.

Jan. 12—Tobacco market. Timely chats with fruit growers, C. O. Eddy.

Jan. 13—Tobacco market. What farm folk are asking, L. C. Brewer.

BANK DEPOSITS INSURED

The officers of the Commercial Bank have received official notification that this bank is among those which have been officially approved to participate in the federal guarantee of deposits plan.

Deposit insurance went into effect on January 2 and only a very few banks in the whole country failed to qualify. There will be no more runs on banks and the federal supervision will be so strict that bank failures will become a very rare occurrence.

Legislature Organized

The Kentucky general assembly was formally organized at Frankfort on a Tuesday of this week. The session will continue for sixty legislative days. The session is a very important one and it is to be hoped that the "Forgotten Man" will get his "New Deal."

Some people should stop thinking along the gloomy line and look on the brighter side of things. The change would do them good.

Without the aid of local newspapers, no forward movement of a city can successfully be made.

WHEN TIMES WERE HARD

George McKee, Anderson, S. C., says times are not hard. Here's the way George puts it:

"Don't talk to me about hard times. I was born eight miles from a railroad, five miles from a schoolhouse, nine miles from church, 85 miles from New York, 200 yards from a wash hole, 15 feet from a cornfield, and 8,767 miles from Hongkong."

"Our nearest neighbors lived two miles away and they couldn't read or write. I never saw a suit of underwear until I was 17 years old, and that revelation didn't belong to anybody in our family. The only book in the house during my early childhood was a Bible and a catalog somebody sent us."

"There were 12 members in our family, but you see we had three rooms to live in, including a dining room which was also the kitchen. Everybody worked at our house. We thought everybody else in the world had gravy and bread for breakfast, liver and cracklin' hocks for dinner, buttermilk and corn pone for supper, 'cause that's what we had—and liked it."

"Some of us wore brogan shoes occasionally in the wintertime. We had nice white shirts for summertime use. We slept on straw ticks, and pillows were not thought of or required. I didn't know that money would rattle until I was nearly grown. Father got hold of two half-dollars at the same time, and let us hear them rattle. Taxes were not higher, but harder to pay then than now."

"We owned two kerosene lamps, neither of which had a chimney. Our house wasn't ceiled, but two of our rooms had lofts in them. We had a glass window in our company room. Our nicest piece of furniture was a homemade rocking chair. Our beds were of the slat or tight-rope variety. The 'trundle bed' took care of all the 'younguns' under five years of age, and it stayed full all the time."

"We went to school two or three months in the year, but not in a bus. We attended church once a month, but not in a car; we used a two-wheeled wagon. We dressed up on Sundays, but not in silks or satins. We neither wrote letters nor received any. We made our own lye hominy, distilled our own lye from our own ash-hopper. We drank sassafras tea and never had a yearning for coffee."

"We sopped our own molasses; we ate our own meat; we considered rice a delicacy for only the preachers to eat; we had heard of cheese, but never saw any; we knew of some store-bought clothes, but never hoped to wear any; we got a stick of candy and three raisins for Christmas and were happy; we loved ma and pa and were never hungry; enjoyed going naked, didn't want much, expected nothing. That is why our so-called hard times ain't hard on me!"—The Bandera (Texas) Era.

For Christmas Cheer

WHAT is the jolliest color? Red. And which is therefore the most cheerful of vegetables? Why, the tomato, of course! So what can be more appropriate than to make full use of its festive spirit and color at Christmas time? Here's a good soup to start off any dinner during this holiday season:

Tomato Broth with Asparagus Tips: Simmer gently for fifteen minutes the contents of a No. 3 can of tomatoes, one slice onion, one-fourth teaspoon peppercorns, one-fourth teaspoon salt and one-half teaspoon sugar, and then press through a sieve. Add two and one-half cups chicken stock (or two and one-half cups water with one chicken bouillon cube), the liquor from a No. 1 can of asparagus tips and the tips themselves cut in pieces. Heat to boiling and serve. Serves eight.

A Good Luncheon Salad: And here's a hearty salad that has the advantages of tasting delicious, looking cheerful and costing less than fifty cents.

Jellied Tomato and Egg Salad: Dissolve one package of lemon jello in one cup boiling water, and add one can of tomato soup. Cut three hard-cooked eggs in halves, and set one half in each of six individual molds, cut side up. Pour enough tomato mixture around to hold egg in place, and let harden. Then add the rest of the gelatin and let set and chill thoroughly. Unmold onto lettuce leaves, and garnish with mayonnaise. Serves six.*

FARMERS' COLUMN

More Money for Farmers
More money for tobacco growers is the first object of plan of the agricultural adjustment administration in the sign-up campaign now under way in the state.

Farmers who sign contracts and make reductions of a third or a half in their production will make as much money as those who grow a full acreage. This is a "business agreement" offered to tobacco growers by the government.

Farmers are not asked to reduce production without rewards for so doing. In the past they have been asked to cut their tobacco acreage without direct compensation. Now they are asked to reduce acreage with pay for their cooperation. Here is the way the agricultural adjustment administration puts it:

"This is a business agreement between the producer and the secretary of agriculture whereby the producer is to improve his own financial position. It is the policy of the agricultural adjustment administration to offer tobacco producers a program under which those who participate will receive more dollars net than those who do not participate, not only in 1934 but also in 1935, or as long as the program is continued."

The burley tobacco contract provides for a grower reducing his production by a third or a half. The grower may select either reduction.

As soon as the contract has been signed and approved, the grower will receive from the government $20 an acre rent for the third or half taken out of production. That is, if he has been growing four acres and decides to grow only half that number of acres, he will receive before March 1 $40 as rent for the two acres.

In addition, and not later than Sept. 15, 1934, the grower will receive a sum of money equal to 10 percent of the net sale value of his 1933 crop, if he reduces production by a third; or 15 percent of the value of that crop if he reduces production by half.

He also will receive another payment equal to 15 percent or 35 percent of the net sale value of his 1934 crop, depending whether he reduces production a third or a half.

Big Corn Yields

How one mountain farmer overcame the handicap of a limited acreage by increasing yields per acre without great cash outlay, is related by Earl G. Welch, extension agricultural engineer for the college of agriculture, university of Kentucky.

In 1932, Conrad Fulton, living on Millstone creek in Letcher county, drained four acres of swampy land without cash expense by putting in 600 feet of drain, using poles instead of tile.

He applied 200 pounds of superphosphate and two tons of limestone to the acre, at a cost of $3.50 an acre. The limestone was obtained from a quarry on Pine Mountain for 50 cents a ton.

The tract averaged 65 bushels of corn to the acre in 1932 and this year produced 264 bushels on the four acres, with the best acre yielding 90 bushels.

Mr. Fulton drained another small tract last spring, using 200 feet of box-drain to remove seepage water and lime and phosphate. This land produced 70 bushels of corn to the acre.

The average yield of corn on mountain land is 15 bushels, and on unimproved bottom land 25 bushels, according to Mr. Welch.

Apples Make Good Pies

The home economics department of the college of agriculture recently told the Kentucky state horticultural society that Rome Beauty, Black Ben Davis, Winesap, Stayman, and Turkey apples make good pies.

Miss Anna Irvine, a senior student, explained to the fruit growers that apples, to make pies, should have a desirable flavor, cook quickly but not become mushy, not be so watery that they soak the pie crust, and be tart. The Rome Beauty was found excellent without spice, using only sugar and butter. Lemon juice is unnecessary, as the apple is tart. It cooks quickly, is not watery, and holds its shape well.

The Black Ben Davis has a good flavor and may be used without spice, although some persons prefer a little cinnamon and nutmeg. Lemon juice is not needed. It cooks quickly, does not mush, is not watery, and makes a desirable pie.

The Winesap is desirable in flavor when a little cinnamon and nutmeg are used. It cooks well but requires a longer time than Rome Beauty or Black Ben Davis. No lemon juice is needed.

The Stayman is desirable in flavor with a small amount of cinnamon and nutmeg, but is not considered very desirable without any spice. It is tart and needs no lemon juice. It cooks well but requires a little more time than Rome Beauty and Black Ben Davis but less time than the Winesap. It holds its shape well and is not watery.

The Turkey apple is desirable in flavor, and is delicious with a small amount of cinnamon and nutmeg. It is tart, cooks quickly, and is not watery.

Grapes Are Profitable

Grapes were profitable in Lee county this year, despite low prices, according to County Agent T. H. Jones. They paid better than corn and other field crops.

Logan Chapman produced 400 bushels of grapes on an acre. Spraying and other costs were $123.50, and his net profit $176.50.

George Botner sold $152 worth of grapes from his two and three-fourths acres of three year old vines. His profit was $125.

Albert Steele, on a third of an acre, produced $60 worth of grapes, his profit being $47.65.

Thirtyseven vines on the farm of H. W. Hall yielded $60 worth of grapes, with a net profit of $55.

People's Column

FLOW THEM UNDER

Mr. Roscoe Brong, in an editorial meant to be fire but which sadly turned out to be mostly smoke, complained at length in last week's Courier that he was unable to understand so simple a story as "Marching On."

Had Stomach Ache, Perhaps
Let us say first of all that Mr. Brong has our heartfelt sympathy. What a time he must have of it, reading and trying to understand the comic pages of the Courier-Journal. We like Mr. Brong. He has always impressed us as rather a stalwart young man, who some day may rank among the leading editors of the mountains. We rather hope that he wasn't quite normal when he penned his sulphurous little diatribe. That perhaps he had eaten rather too much supper that evening, and, arising at midnight with pains in the stomach, vented his feelings on our story.

Be that as it may, Mr. Brong's "Explanation Wanted" was, to us at least, a comedy of errors. By saying that Philip McGrath's sermon smacked of a political speech, Mr. Brong revealed that he merely skimmed the story. But perhaps he was busy playing with the children's Christmas toys, or had to listen to Amos 'n' Andy!

Meant for Inspiration
"Marching On" was meant for an inspirational story. It did not condemn relief work. The author knows full well of the good which the work has done. Of the hungry mouths it has filled and the shivering backs it has clothed.

"Marching On" was aimed rather at the substantial class of farmer who, growling "I may as well have it as somebody else," has turned from farming to roadworking. "Marching On" tried to stir up a little ambition, a little fire that spark which fired our forefathers. Mr. Brong solemnly assures us that we have failed.

But, strangely, we pay very little attention to Mr. Brong's remarks, for this reason. He is very ready to fire his shafts at our efforts, yet he has no coherent plan of his own to offer. Philip McGrath advised the farmers of Hogwallow county to go back to their farms and raise their living, as their ancestors did. Mr. Brong arises to report that there is far too much being raised on farms now. Then why does this farmer come to the store to buy meal? And that farmer to buy meat and lard? Would a farmer buy meal if he had an oversupply of corn? Or meat and lard if he had plenty of hogs? You are sadly wrong, Mr. Brong. The farmers in Hogwallow county were a great deal like the farmers of Morgan county; they import, not export. Very few of them stretch every effort to make the most of their farms.

Jeers and Cheers

When we wrote "Marching On" we expected to receive plenty of brickbats for "Marching On" strikes rather dangerously close to a whole lot of people. But, on the other hand, we have received numerous bouquets.

We believe that if any person would sincerely try to catch the spirit of the story, he would not condemn it. But perhaps that would be asking too much. For when this controversy between Mr. Brong and myself is boiled down, it all amounts to exactly nothing.

Must Plow Thoughts Under

At least to my notion, Mr. Brong and myself are brain workers. As such, we will probably be asked by the government to plow under half our surplus thoughts. And if all our thoughts are as unproductive as "Marching On" and all of Mr. Brong's as tasteless as "Explanation Wanted," it might be better if we just plowed them all under! CHASE McCLURE

NO EXPLANATION

Mr. McClure refuses or fails to give any real explanation of his sublimated ghost story, except that it was meant to be "inspirational." I had already guessed that much. What I wanted Mr. McClure to tell me is, first, how and why a farmer exhibits lack of ambition when he prefers to work on a road for decent wages rather than stay on his farm for nothing; and, second, what would be the result if farm crops of which there are already surpluses on the markets were greatly increased, perhaps doubled, by inspiration received from Mr. McClure's story.

Again I must admit that I do not have so much imagination as Chase McClure. I cannot see how imaginary stomach pains (which didn't exist) have any more to do with these questions than an imaginary ghost has.

But Mr. McClure denies that there are surpluses. He seems to know the market conditions better than the chosen leaders and representatives of the farmers themselves—the growers of tobacco, wheat, corn, and cotton, the producers of other farm products. Mr. McClure knows too much. I quit. ROSCOE BRONG

"The FIRESIDE PHILOSOPHER"

Scientists say that man has been on the earth hundreds of thousands of years. But we haven't yet found out how to pull together.

"Character is the basis of credit"—but most bankers like collateral.

The Liberty Bell proclaimed "liberty throughout all the land" and then, somehow, it got cracked.

Modern invention hasn't found out how to improve on the "square deal."

Truth-telling as a habit is a lot of fun—especially when folks don't believe you.

BOB JONES' COMMENTS

"Sleep on now and take your rest." That is what Jesus told his disciples in the garden the night he was betrayed. He had asked them to watch with Him. But instead of watching they slept. They slept when they had an opportunity to enter into the fellowship of His sufferings. They wasted their opportunity.

"God never intended for hate to win its purposes. Sometimes God lets hate win His purposes." That is what my good friend Governor Bibb Graves of Alabama said to me one time. The Governor is right. Hate put Christ on the cross. Hate meant to destroy Jesus. But it failed. Jesus is just as much an issue today as He was when He stood in Pilate's Hall.

Jesus beautified all of his contacts. He touched babyhood into beauty by taking little children into his arms and saying, "Suffer the little children to come unto me." You never see any one wearing an electric chair on a watch chain. No one would think of wearing a necklace with a scaffold and a man hanging to it. But people wear crosses and put them on churches. The cross, before Jesus hung on one, was more horrible than electric chairs or scaffolds. He touched the terrible cross and transformed it into radiant beauty. Jesus stayed in a grave for three days and when He walked out He left a lamp burning. Because He died death has no terror for those who love Him.

"I don't believe in doctrinal preaching. I like practical every day preaching." You hear that expression often. All Bible doctrine is practical. If Christ suffered for us, we should suffer for each other. If He bears our burdens we ought to bear each other's burdens. If He is coming back sometime, we ought to be patient in applications of all the fundamental doctrines.

Not long ago a modernistic preacher said to a friend, "Bob Jones is one of these 'fun dam mentalists' preachers." He didn't intend to, but he was complimenting me. I believe the Bible from the first verse of Genesis to the last verse of Revelation. I respect an honest doubter or even an open, frank infidel. I have a contempt for a preacher who will stay in the church and fill a pulpit and make a living by robbing the people of their faith in the Gospel for which the church is supposed to stand.

Why Get Up Nights?

Lax the Bladder With Juniper Oil, Buchu, Etc.

Drive out the impurities and excess acids that cause irritation, burning and frequent desire. Juniper oil is pleasant to take in the form of BUKETS, the bladder laxative, also containing Buchu leaves, etc. Works on the bladder similar to castor oil on the bowels. Get a 25c box from any drug store. After four days if not relieved of "getting up nights" go back and get your money. If you are bothered with backache or leg pains caused from bladder disorders you are bound to feel better after this cleansing and you get your regular sleep. Arnett Drug Co. says BUKETS is a best seller.—Adv.

Self-Tolling Death Bell

The dismantling of Avenbury church, Herefordshire, England, has caused its three bells, Gabriel Andrew, Paul and Thomas, to be shipped to a famous church in Blackfriars, London. In whose tower they will be hung as soon as sufficient funds can be collected for the returning and rehanging. The church is St. Andrew-by-the-Wardrobe, and its parishioners flocked to the vestry where the bells had been deposited. To two of the bells, Paul, named after the patron saint of the Hereford diocese, and Thomas, named after St. Thomas of Canterbury, they gave scant attention, although Thomas dated from 1757 and bore the inscription: "A. R. Peace and Good Neighborhood." Gabriel Andrew was the center of all eyes and attention, for a legend had come from Avenbury to the effect that whenever a vicar of the church died Gabriel Andrew tolled of its own accord.

Dig for Tobacco, Find Gold

Smuggling and illicit growing of tobacco assumed such proportions of late that peasants in the tobacco-growing districts of Serbia have become quite accustomed to having their houses frequently searched by gendarmes. Not content with searching the house of a peasant near Kotechane, in South Serbia, an unusually zealous group of gendarmes started to dig in his field for concealed tobacco, and to their astonishment came on an enormous earthenware jar which proved to contain gold and silver coins worth over $90,000. Although the coins are of comparatively recent date, and are believed to have been buried since the Balkan war, the owner of the land can throw no light on their presence.

It is within five hours' walk of the village of Argentiere, and it serves as starting point for many climbs in this region of the Mont Blanc, meeting place of the French.

Old Orchards Can Be Made Produce

Fall Fertilization Needed, Followed by Plowing and Pruning.

By W. M. Case, Extension Horticulturist,
Colorado Agricultural College,
Windsor, Colo.

There are many old and neglected orchards that could be brought into profitable production with little cost and labor.

When an orchard has been neglected for a number of years, the trees become overgrown with wood, due to lack of pruning. Cultivation has been neglected and the spaces between the trees are covered with pasture grasses and weeds; the soil is hard and fertility is lacking.

The first thing to be done is to plow the orchard in the fall as deeply as possible. Tree roots in neglected orchards are unusually close to the surface, and hence care should be taken in plowing the first time not to tear up too many roots. The depth can be increased with each successive plowing, as the roots will go down when given a chance. Before plowing, the land should be given a good coat of barnyard manure.

Next in importance is the pruning. This should be done between February 15 and April 15. When trees have been neglected for some years, they are usually full of wood and need thinning. It is not advisable to do all the pruning in one year, as it tends to encourage the growth of suckers or water-sprouts. It is better to take two years in which to bring the trees into shape.

Flax Seed Crop Short; Also Light in Weight

The extremely short flax crop of this year, estimated at less than 8,000,000 bushels, makes it important for farmers and seedsmen to obtain flax seed for sowing next spring, says the United States Department of Agriculture. About 2,000,000 bushels of flax seed will be required for sowing at the usual acreage of nearly 3,000,000 acres is sown, and it is evident, therefore, that many growers will find it good business to hold a part of the present crop for seed.

There was a shortage of flax seed in some localities last spring following the short crop of 1932, but the situation now appears to be even more critical. The production in 1932 was nearly 12,000,000 bushels and the farm price during the fall was less than $1 a bushel, which caused many farmers to hold flax for higher prices.

The department specialists are of the opinion that farmers who plan to sow flax next year should obtain their seed supply while good seed can be obtained near at hand and at approximately market prices. As flax seed is likely to be light in weight, due to the drought and heat throughout the flax-producing area, a supply of seed greater than required should be provided so that in reseedling the light seed can be removed. The shrunk seed should be ground and mixed with other grain for feed, or sold on the market for crushing, the department says.

Bot Control

Farmers who expect to treat their horses for bots this fall will get better results if they wait until one month after the first freezing weather has set in for a day or longer, says the United States Department of Agriculture. This recommendation is based on recent experimental work of the bureau of animal industry, showing that the larvae of the common bot spend from 21 to 28 days in the tongue of the horse before migrating to the stomach. Previous recommendations for treatment of bots have been based on the belief that as soon as the eggs—laid on the hair of a horse—hatched the larvae went directly to the stomach. With the new knowledge of the life cycle of this parasite, control measures may be more effectively used. As soon as freezing weather appears, the eggs may be destroyed by washing the animal with a 2 per cent solution of cresol. Then, after about 30 days, have a competent veterinarian supervise treatment of the animal with carbon disulphide to rid it of the parasites in its stomach.

Wilt in Alfalfa

Wilt is about the most serious disease of alfalfa. Diseased plants become dwarfed, especially when the plants are more than one-half mature size after the field has been cut. Other indications are yellowing of the leaves or mottling and wilting, as if injured by frost. The disease is spread by hay from infected fields, by flow water passing from a diseased field, and perhaps to some extent by mowers. Rotating crops and destroying all plants from a diseased field are control methods. Seed is not known to spread the disease.—Wallace's Farmer.

Where Crops Fit In

There are some crops which are not well suited to very fertile soils. Buckwheat, for example, often produces too much straw and too little grain on rich soils, especially those soils which are very high in nitrogen. Oats are likely to lodge badly on soils too rich in nitrogen. On the other hand, a fertile soil is essential for profitable yields of wheat and barley. Rye will grow well on rich soils but it is also a particularly good crop for light and fertile soils.

BASEMENT COMING INTO ITS OWN AS INHABITABLE PART OF HOUSE

Rooms Can Be Built Inexpensively by Use of Pressed-wood, Wall-board, Some Paint and Little Ingenuity

ONE of the most expensive items in building a house is the basement, yet, considering its cost, it is probably the least used part of the home.

With the increasing installations of oil burners and gas heating, the basement is becoming more and more an inhabitable part of the house. From a storage room for the lawn-mower, the garden tools and various odds and ends, it is emerging as a comfortable recreation room, a study, a play room for the children, a home workshop, an amateur photographer's studio, radio operator's room or home tap-room.

In reclaiming the basement, one can spend as little or as much as he chooses and can afford. There may be paneled walls, hard-wood floors, draped windows and expensive furnishings, if one wishes to spend the money. But for only a few dollars the ordinary basement can be converted into a very cozy and attractive place.

All that really is necessary is to erect partitions to set the recreation room, or whatever else it is to be, aside from the furnace room and that part of the basement used for storage, and to use a little ingenuity in decoration. Partitions of long, wide boards of pressed wood are ideal for the purpose. Any carpenter can install them quickly or you can do the job yourself if you are at all handy with a saw and hammer.

The partition walls may be left natural or painted. Foundation walls, which ordinarily form at least two sides of the room, can be painted with a wet-weather paint. If the floor is concrete, floor or deck paint should be used.
